Project AMEEL (Arabic and Middle Eastern Electronic Library) is a cooperative project, sponsored by the Department of Education and Yale University Library, to develop a collaborative virtual library that will make available important Middle Eastern resources in a four-part initiative:

- (1) to develop an integrated infrastructure for digital scholarly content;
- (2) to digitize key journals on and about the Middle East;
- (3) to build and expand the capacity for Arabic full text scanning; and
- (4) to develop technologies and protocols to facilitate inter-library lending between US and Middle Eastern libraries.

The key partners of the project are:

- Bibliotheca Alexandrina (Egypt),
- Universitates-und Landesbibliothek of Sachsen-Anhalt (Halle, Germany),
- JSTOR (New York, USA), and
- publishers such as Brill Academic Publishers (Leiden, the Netherlands), Multidata (Beirut, Lebanon), Oxford University Press (United Kingdom)
